

DAVID ESSEX

Please note that David Essex read my contribution (below) and confirmed he was happy with this before my broadcast.

David is someone full of ideas, he wants to share with others.

He makes plans and then hates delays. He can be very focussed on the physical, in hurry to make his ideas and vision real.

David can be a great master of his emotions and can be a great mediator – helping others connect to another world.

As he gets older the courage to just be himself and do things in his own way, may become more and more important to him and he may find this brings fresh opportunities for him.

He wants things done properly and has an eye for perfection, even when everything is changing. The truth is always crystal clear to him and there is always a right way to do things. David can be quite inflexible with regard to this. He takes care that everything is done properly and everyone is cared for as they should be. He very much communicates his wisdom in his actions.

David's very good at getting people to co-operate together and for bringing the best out in others. He has great breadth of vision that not everyone can understand and it can be a struggle sometimes for him to make sure what he wants to happen, happens. He has had to have the courage to act on his dreams, even if others just don't 'get it'.

Making ideas happen is a very spiritual process for David, he may at times need space and time on his own to just connect with his inner voice and to follow it, oblivious to what anyone else may think. When he's doing something that he believes in and doing it in the way he thinks it should be done. Then the kind and considerate side to him becomes very apparent. David's mission is to create harmony wherever he goes and this harmony has to be based on his truth.

Uncertainty can be a recurring theme in his life and focussing just on the physical can make him nervous and stressed. Caring and sharing for others can make him feel lots better, but he has to be careful, he doesn't give too much at times.

There can be lots intense mood swings between stubborn and inflexible to shy and uncertain. He can swing between focussing on the big picture, to focussing on the details. Craving excitement and staying calm under fire.

David loves being on the cutting edge of innovative projects and activities. He is a great problem solver, with great compassion and understanding. He has doubts, but each time he resolves these by just trusting his inner voice and taking the action, he gets stronger and stronger ...

2009 & 2010 may have been a completely fresh start for him and there may have been many happy reunions with friends and family.

2011 & 2012 may be more of a pause in his life, a time to think and perhaps to see things as they really are and not as they appear. David may find in these years that he achieves more success, through acceptance and the promotion of harmony.

Advancement of creative abilities may be related to opportunities provided by old friends who re-appeared on the scene 2009 & 2010.

Next year (2013) might be another year of rest and reflection. A time, when he may feel he needs to know himself at a deeper level. A time, to analyse his goals, projects and relationships.

2014 may be the year to let go of all that is unproductive and to try to finish all his projects. He is letting go of the old to make room for powerful new beginnings in 2015 and 2016. New beginnings that could involve him inspiring others through his work, in whole new ways and there may be a massive letting go in the process.
