Relationship Chart: Wayne Rooney, Jack Wilsher, Daniel Sturridge and the Date of England V Italy Match (14/06/14)

This 'Relationship Chart' illustrates how effectively Wayne, Jack and Daniel may be able to work together during the above match and how their individual worlds may expand greatly as a result.

This match may be a particularly important for Wayne Rooney. He may clash a little with Jack, who might not always take things as seriously as he does and who may also have his own ideas as to how things should be done. But by working with Jack and Daniel, Wayne may truly demonstrate his skills and talent.

Something Wayne, Jack and Daniel all share in dominant 1 energy, this means they all have great will power and have to do things in their own way. However, the gift that comes from Saturday's date is such a sense of responsibility that they all truly focus on working together harmoniously, giving each other as much space as possible to do things in their own way. This however, may be a lot easier for Wayne and Jack to achieve, leaving Daniel at times feeling isolated and misunderstood.

This match may bring to a head everyone's fear of not being good enough, particularly Daniel's. They all want to inspire with their work and may come across as more confident than they feel inside.

Taking full responsibility and striving for perfection is the starting point for Wayne, who can be ruthless about getting what he wants. The challenge with tomorrow's date is to trust that inner voice and to follow it, something that Jack may find very easy to do.

The starting point of Saturday's date is 14/5 which represents 'the messenger', this can mean the words pouring out of everyone and there is the potential for frustration and emotion to make things quite explosive. Wayne is very determined and may show great emotional control during this match, Jack and Daniel may however clearly show their frustrations.
